Celebrity Judges at Voice of the Valley Grand Finale

Its that time again, Voice of the Valley Grand Finale is this Saturday evening at the Historic Hemet Theater. After auditions and rehearsals the top 10 vocalists in the Inland Valley are coming together to compete for the $1000.00 Grand Prize.

If you watch American Idol, Americas Got Talent or The Voice, then you are going to love Voice of the Valley. Its your chance to see some great singers perform in two group numbers choreographed by West End British Choreographer Ben E. Smith and sing their own individual numbers all competing to become The Voice of the Valley 2014. You, the audience will have the chance to vote for your favorite and award them a $250.00 prize, sponsored by the Hemet Farmers Market.

This year our finalists come from all over the Inland Valley; Moreno Valley, Murrieta, Menifee, Temecula, San Jacinto and Hemet.

This is the third year for Voice of the Valley and the talent is the best yet.

We are very lucky to have some phenomenal judges this year, Star of Broadway's Wicked and recording artist Shoshana Bean, 101.3 The Mix's very own Bob Madden, Andrew Vallejos from the Soboba Band of Luiseno Indians, Jehnean Washington who portrays Ramona at the Ramona Bowl, local celebrity Linda Greilich from Golden Era Productions, local business owner Suzanne Davis from The Sweet Life Restaurant and Bakery, Giovanna Yepremian from Starbucks at Palm and Florida and a finalist from Voice of the Valley 2011 Brittany Philippi.

Shoshana Bean, best known for portraying Elphaba in Broadway's Wicked, is once again coming back to Hemet to help support local arts in our community and to encourage youth to pursue their dreams. Last September, Shoshana performed to a sold out crowd at the Historic Hemet Theater leaving people wanting more. If you missed out on her concert here is another chance to see her.

This event is not one to miss, it is a feel good evening in the Valley. If you think there is nothing to do in Hemet, the Voice of the Valley Grand Finale will prove you wrong.

Tickets are only $10.00 and available by calling 646-436-7290.
